Case Study

Paramount is a private members club set on the 31st and 32nd floors of the iconic Centre Point Tower in the heart of London, with possibly the best views across the capital.

The main kitchen is all electric and located on the 32nd floor. At its centre is a 'table-top' bespoke Athanor suite measuring 3400mm x 1400mm.

"We had to work with all electric appliances" comments Tony Perkins, Project Sales Manager of Carford Group who undertook the design development and fit out for the kitchen aspect of the project. "This was due to no gas being allowed at this height for obvious health and safety reasons" he adds.

Surrounding the suite are preparation work zones and bulk cooking equipment located on the back kitchen wall. The kitchen can provide for up to 100 members lunch and dinner in the restaurant on level 32 and function work for up to 200 guests in the event dining space on level 31.

James O'Connor, Head Chef says "it's certainly one of the best kitchens I've worked in, we have so much natural daylight and the best views from a kitchen anywhere in the world".
