Case Study

Acclaimed Michelin starred chef's Jacques & Laurent Pourcel commissioned an Athanor suite for their first restaurant venture in London.

The configuration of the suite required ultimate flexibility for the mise-en-place period and precision cooking for the service period.

The suite configuration combines the need for large volume heat surfaces for stock production during preparation periods and ambient lay-off zones for resting product during service.

The suite comprises two solid tops, two open burners, two 'Plaque Athanor' Plancha and one oven to service a 120 cover restaurant.

Athanor was chosen due to the efficient design and multi-functional cooking elements which could be incorporated within a compact footprint.
